

Uncertain times: Adaptability in the areas of work, study and research.

Wednesday 24th June 2020 | 9am – 5pm (AEST) | Online via Zoom

PODCASTS AS AN eLEARNING EDUCATIONAL TOOL

Stephen P. Bird, PhD

*Associate Professor (Sport and Exercise Science)
School of Health and Wellbeing, Faculty of Health, Engineering and Sciences
Ipswich Campus University of Southern Queensland*

Email: stephen.bird@usq.edu.au

ABSTRACT: One of the most interesting and valuable uses of Podcasting in Education is the concept of student-centred created content incorporating Technology Enriched Learning that allows students to be fully exposed to an online environment. A major advantages of education podcasts is the portability and convenience they offer, allowing students to access industry-relevant topic content anytime, anywhere, with very little effort. Student feedback has reiterated that podcasts are a valuable eLearning educational tool, which can support teaching and learning in an online environment.

GOAL: Committed to delivering high-quality teaching experiences with the goal of developing industry-ready graduates, aligning contemporary curricula with industry best practice.

USING PODCASTS AS AN eLEARNING EDUCATIONAL TOOL

- 1) Educational challenge: Clear purpose; Varied cohort; Fully online; TEL
- 2) Challenge addressed: Developed podcast to link student to contextual meaning
- 3) What did we learn? Value of student empowerment
- 4) Where to? Next steps: Podcast platform review

WHERE TO NOW?

- 1) Podcast Content: Add podcast content to all topics.
- 2) Create Podcast Teasers: Create podcast teasers to be used as external marketing tool
- 3) Podcast Platform: Discuss transition to USQ podcast platform

TAKE HOME POINT: Student feedback suggests that podcasts were perceived to be useful supplementary learning tools that aided topic revision and in preparation for assessments.

Podcasts are a valuable eLearning educational tool