

Teaching Psychology around the World:
Volume 3

Edited by

Sherri McCarthy, K. Laurie Dickson,
Jacquelyn Cranney, Annie Trapp
and Victor Karandashev

CAMBRIDGE
SCHOLARS

---

P U B L I S H I N G

Teaching Psychology around the World: Volume 3,
Edited by Sherri McCarthy, K. Laurie Dickson, Jacquelyn Cranney,
Annie Trapp and Victor Karandashev

This book first published 2012

Cambridge Scholars Publishing

12 Back Chapman Street, Newcastle upon Tyne, NE6 2XX, UK

British Library Cataloguing in Publication Data
A catalogue record for this book is available from the British Library

Copyright © 2012 by Sherri McCarthy, Jacquelyn Cranney, K. Laurie Dickson, Annie Trapp and Victor Karandashev and contributors

All rights for this book reserved. No part of this book may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system, or transmitted, in any form or by any means, electronic, mechanical, photocopying, recording or otherwise, without the prior permission of the copyright owner.

ISBN (10): 1-4438-3448-3, ISBN (13): 978-1-4438-3448-3

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Preface ..... xii

Section One Teaching Psychology in Australia Jacquelyn Cranney, Chief Editor

Chapter One ..... 2
Psychology Education and Training in Australia: Shaping the Future
Jacquelyn Cranney and Nicholas J. Voudouris

Chapter Two ..... 15
Teaching ‘Intercultural Diversity and Indigenous Psychology’:
The Talking Stick as a Strategy to Manage Student Discomfort
Surrounding Difficult Issues
Rob Ranzijn and Keith McConnochie

Chapter Three ..... 30
Disciplinary Perspectives of Australian High School Teachers
Stephen Provost, Leigh Mellish, Jacquelyn Cranney and Francis H. Martin

Chapter Four ..... 42
A Team-Teaching Approach to Teaching Undergraduate Psychology
Julie Ann Pooley and Lynne Cohen

Chapter Five ..... 55
Strengthening Teaching and Learning in Psychology by Looking Beyond Disciplinary Boundaries: A Case Study from the University of South Australia
Elissa Pearson, Rob Ranzijn, Ian Goodwin-Smith, Alan Campbell, Renae Hayward and Gail Jackman

Chapter Six .....	72
Taking Clinical Psychology Postgraduate Training into the Next Decade: Aligning Competencies to the Curriculum
Nancy A. Pachana, Andrew Baillie, Edward Helmes, W. Kim Halford, Greg Murray, Mike Kyrios, Analise O'Donovan, Mia O'Brien, Steven Schwartz and Kate Sofronoff
Chapter Seven.....	87
Developing Program Learning Objectives to Enhance the Work Readiness of Australian Psychology Graduates
Renaë Hayward, Rob Ranzijn, Janet Bryan and Elissa Pearson
Chapter Eight.....	105
Making Psychology More Relevant to Indigenous Students (and others): Moving Causes to Context and Expanding Social Relationships to the Real World
Bernard Guerin
Chapter Nine.....	116
Flexible Learning Outcomes Offered by an Online Program in Behavioural Studies
Lorraine E. Fleckhammer and Lisa Z. Wise
Chapter Ten .....	133
Peer-to-Peer Mentoring: An Embedded Model to Support the Transition of First Year Psychology Students
Andrea Chester, Sophia Xenos and Lorelle J. Burton
Chapter Eleven .....	151
An Empirical Case for Introductory Psychology Tutorials in a Large-Class Format
Amy Y.C. Chan, Chris Brewer and Jessica L. Browne
Chapter Twelve .....	164
Increasing the Work-Readiness of Australian Psychology Undergraduates by Changing the Curriculum
Janet Bryan, Rob Ranzijn, Cathy Balfour, Michelle Tuckey, Renaë Hayward, Elissa Pearson, Gail Jackman and Kurt Lushington

Chapter Thirteen .....	180
Student Perception of E-Learning in Tertiary Education: An Investigation of Liaw's (2008) Three-Tier Technology Use Model
Laura Beasant and Alison Hine

Chapter Fourteen .....	198
Student Perspectives on the Value of Research Participation
Lynne D. Roberts and Peter J. Allen

Section Two
Teaching Psychology in North America
K. Laurie Dickson, Chief Editor

Chapter Fifteen .....	214
The Hallmark of Psychology: Science and Application
K. Laurie Dickson

Chapter Sixteen .....	231
Educating Psychologically-Literate Students: The Importance of Critical Thinking
Heather A. Butler and Diane F. Halpern

Chapter Seventeen .....	247
Critical Analysis: Crib Card Use in College Classrooms
K. Laurie Dickson

Chapter Eighteen .....	261
Class Activities for Undergraduate Industrial/Organisational Psychology: Deepening Learning and Facilitating Critical Thinking
Ludmila N. Praslova

Chapter Nineteen .....	275
Let Such Teach Others who Themselves Excel: Best Teaching Practices for Psychology
Nicholas F. Skinner

Section Three
Teaching Psychology in Europe
Annie Trapp, Chief Editor

Chapter Twenty .....	292
Teaching Psychology in Europe
Annie Trapp, Peter Reddy, Birgit Spinath, J. Fredrico Marques and Nebi Sumer
Chapter Twenty-One .....	311
The Current Situation of Undergraduate and Postgraduate Education in Psychotherapy for Psychologists in Spain
Maria Paz Garcia-Vera, Jesus Sanz and Jose M. Prieto
Chapter Twenty-Two.....	330
Attitudes toward Psychology as a Science and the Persistence of Psychological Misconceptions in Psychology Undergraduates
Fiona Lyddy and Sean Hughes

Section Four
Teaching Psychology in Other Parts of the World
Sherri McCarthy, Chief Editor

Chapter Twenty-Three.....	350
Teaching Psychology in South America
Luciana Karine de Souza, Sherri McCarthy and Gustavo Gauer
Chapter Twenty-Four .....	375
Teaching and Evaluating Psychology Professional Ethics Learning: Reflections on an Empirical Assessment in Chile
Diana Pasmanik, Fabiola Jadue, Deydi Saballa and María Inés Winkler
Chapter Twenty-Five.....	391
Metaphors in the Teaching of Psychology
Shulamith Kreitler, Adva Maroliot and Yasmin Alkalay
Chapter Twenty-Six.....	410
Social Constructionism and Graduate Professional Training: Challenges for Teaching, Supervision and Research
Neil Rodgers

Chapter Twenty-Seven .....	423
Effect of Didactic Lectures and Problem-Based Learning Sessions on Student Learning: A Prospective Study
Sajida Agha, Moin Ansari, Sayad Irfan Ali and Pir Bukhsh Khokar
Chapter Twenty-Eight .....	432
The Development of Self-Understanding through Psychology Education
Julia Suleeman

Section Five

Developments in the Internationalisation of Psychology Teaching Sherri McCarthy and Victor Karandashev, Chief Editors

Chapter Twenty-Nine .....	442
Internationalisation of Psychology Education: Models and Levels
Victor Karandashev
Chapter Thirty .....	462
Internationalising Resources for Psychology Programs
Through Professional Organizations
Merry Bullock
Chapter Thirty-One .....	467
Teaching Psychology around the World: Changing Landscapes
Sherri McCarthy

PREFACE

This book is intended to be a current overview of teaching and learning psychology around the world. It includes chapters that demonstrate the current state of international psychological research and practice as presented at the most recent International Conference on Psychology Education (ICOPE) in Sydney, Australia during July, 2010. It updates and supplements Teaching Psychology around the World, Volume 1 & Volume 2 which were released by CSP in 2007 and 2009 respectively. Information about psychology teaching in countries from several continents appears, with a special emphasis on Australia in this volume. The editors have all served or will soon serve on scientific and/or organizing committees in one or more of the series of International Conferences on Psychology Education (ICOPE) which began in St. Petersburg, Russia during June, 2002.

Teaching Psychology around the World, Volume 1 included papers from the 2nd International Conference on Psychology Education held in Foz do Iguacu, Brazil in July, 2005. Volume 2 included papers from the 3rd International Conference on Psychology Education in St. Petersburg, Russia in 2008. This book, like those previous, disseminates information about good practice and covers many aspects of teaching, including curriculum, planning, activities and assessment practices from countries throughout the world. The aim of the book is to provide up-to-date information that is both technically accurate and readily understandable. The book incorporates research and perspectives from psychologists and professors from many countries throughout the world. It also includes information about the growing internationalisation of psychology teaching.

The ICOPE group will be meeting again in conjunction with the International Union of Psychological Sciences' International Congress of Psychology during 2012 in Capetown, South Africa. We are also planning to meet at Northern Arizona University in Flagstaff, Arizona, during 2014. Thus, we will have connected our group to every continent and many university colleagues during our first decade. This is an exciting time for those of us involved in teaching psychology and training psychologists as we focus on internationalisation of the discipline.

A key feature of this book, as with the last two, is providing international perspectives on psychology teaching and learning. The authors have extensive experience teaching psychology using many mediums, including interactive television, web-courses, distance seminars and traditional lecture courses delivered by colleges and universities in many countries. We draw on these extensive experiences in synthesising the material gathered here. The chapters were contributed by noted psychologists and professors of psychology from throughout the world, selected from papers presented at the 2010 ICOPE conference. Like our first volume, this volume utilises UK English. That decision was made based solely on the percentages of chapters and articles submitted in that version of the language; the remainder were then edited for consistency. As with the other volumes, I apologise in advance and accept full responsibility for any errors resulting from the conversion.

Although all of the editors collaboratively shared knowledge in refining the chapters throughout this book, we each took specific responsibility for designated chapters most related to our own expertise. Annie Trapp, a leader in the EUROPLAT project and a long-time leader in psychology education within the UK updated our chapter on Europe. Jacqueline Cranney of The University of New South Wales in Australia, active in many national and international psychology associations and with a wealth of international experiences, did the lion's share of work for this volume by editing the chapters from Australia, of which, due to our conference location, there were many more than usual! K. Laurie Dickson, Psychology Department Chair of Northern Arizona University, active in university efforts toward globalisation and familiar with psychology teaching in the U.S., updated our section on North America. Victor Karandashev, the organiser of our first conference and long-time heart and co-founder of the group, kept our communication with authors organised and assisted with the section on internationalisation of psychology teaching. I edited the chapters we had from other parts of the world, including South America, the Middle East, Asia and New Zealand. K. Laurie Dickson and I also edited the text throughout, along with our helpful editors and typesetters at Cambridge Scholars Publishing, for the sake of accuracy, clarity and consistency. As mentioned previously, we chose to use UK Standard English for this volume since the majority of our contributors this time utilised that form of the language. As with the last volume, I apologise in advance for any inconsistencies in style and format that have arisen as a result of the process of blending manuscripts created on word processing programs of various ilks from around the globe. I am grateful to all of the many contributors for sharing their expertise in this volume, and all of our audience for caring enough to remain current in international practices in the teaching of psychology. I hope this series will continue to be a valuable source of information to all psychologists, and especially to all teachers of psychology, regardless of level and area, in countries around the world. I also hope it will continue to bring us closer together as we continue making psychology a discipline which transcends national boundaries and serves all of mankind as we build more functional societies and improve quality of life for future generations. I hope to meet you all at one of our future conferences, and I thank all of our contributors for their roles in internationalising psychology and for their patience with me during the preparation of this book!

Sherri McCarthy—October, 2011